AGENDA

PNM Streetlight Conversion

PROJECT ADDRESS

Citywide

DESCRIPTION

The City of Santa Fe has collaborated with the Public Service Company of New Mexico (PNM) to draft a conversion agreement with the purpose of changing some of the luminaries in the streetlights PNM owns and maintains within the City to meet the community-guided design standards approved by the Governing Body in May 2021 and match what is already installed on city-owned streetlights. These dark-sky approved luminaires use Light Emitting Diodes (LED) technology to lower power consumption and extend the lifespan in contrast to the existing Mercury Vapor (MV) and High-Pressure Sodium (HPS) currently in PNM-owned streetlights.

PNM currently owns and maintains 2,057 streetlights out of approximately 5,500 within the city. The current budget for the project is $525,000 and PNM estimates approximately 1,100 streetlights would be able to be converted based on the current budget. Public Works proposes to prioritize streetlights for conversion based on the cost of each type of conversion (HPS and Mercury Vapor) and wattage of the bulb (100W, 175W, 250W, and 400W).
